

Donald Trump and the Unmaking of the Iran Nuclear Deal: A Chronological Account of a Tumultuous Relationship

The Iran nuclear deal, formally known as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), was a landmark agreement reached in 2015 between Iran and six world powers (the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Germany, China, and Russia). The deal aimed to prevent Iran from developing nuclear weapons in exchange for the lifting of international sanctions. However, the deal has been a subject of intense debate and controversy, particularly in the United States, where it has faced strong opposition from both Republicans and some Democrats.

A Timeline of the Trump Administration's Actions on the Iran Nuclear Deal

- January 20, 2017: President Donald Trump takes office and immediately begins to express skepticism about the Iran nuclear deal. He calls it a "disaster" and a "terrible deal" and threatens to withdraw the United States from the agreement.
- October 13, 2017: Trump announces that he will not certify that Iran is complying with the nuclear deal. He gives Congress 60 days to fix the deal or he will reimpose sanctions on Iran.
- December 12, 2017: Congress passes legislation that includes new sanctions on Iran and gives Trump the authority to reimpose sanctions if he believes Iran is not complying with the nuclear deal.

- May 8, 2018: Trump announces that the United States will withdraw from the Iran nuclear deal. He also reimposes sanctions on Iran.
- May 12, 2019: Iran announces that it will no longer comply with the nuclear deal. It begins to enrich uranium to a higher level than allowed under the deal.
- June 20, 2019: Iran shoots down a U.S. drone in the Strait of Hormuz. The incident increases tensions between the United States and Iran.
- September 14, 2019: Iran launches a series of attacks on Saudi Arabian oil facilities. The United States blames Iran for the attacks and increases its military presence in the region.
- January 3, 2020: The United States kills Iranian general Qasem Soleimani in an airstrike in Baghdad. Iran retaliates by firing missiles at U.S. bases in Iraq.

The Impact of Trump's Actions on the Iran Nuclear Deal

The Trump administration's actions have had a number of significant impacts on the Iran nuclear deal. First, they have led to the collapse of the deal. Iran is no longer complying with the deal and the United States has reimposed sanctions on Iran. Second, the Trump administration's actions have increased tensions between the United States and Iran. The two countries are now on the brink of war.

The Future of the Iran Nuclear Deal

The future of the Iran nuclear deal is uncertain. The deal is effectively dead, but it is unclear what will come next. The United States and Iran are likely to continue to escalate tensions, which could lead to war. Alternatively, the two countries could reach a new agreement, but this seems unlikely given the current level of mistrust between them.

The Trump administration's actions on the Iran nuclear deal have been a major turning point in U.S.-Iran relations. The deal has collapsed and tensions between the two countries have increased. The future of the Iran nuclear deal is uncertain, but it is clear that the Trump administration's actions have made the world a more dangerous place.
