Lee was born in Toronto, Canada, in 1953. He began playing bass at the age of 14, and by the time he was 17, he had joined Rush. The band's self-titled debut album was released in 1974, and it quickly established Lee as one of the most talented bass players in the world. Rush went on to release a string of classic albums throughout the 1970s and 1980s, including 2112, A Farewell to Kings, and Moving Pictures.

In addition to his work with Rush, Lee has also released several solo albums. His most recent solo album, My Favourite Headache, was released in 2013. Lee has also collaborated with a number of other artists, including Victor Wooten, Stanley Clarke, and Billy Sheehan.

Lee's bass playing has been praised by critics and fellow musicians alike. He has been named one of the greatest bass players of all time by Rolling Stone magazine, and he was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 2013. Lee's playing continues to inspire and influence bass players around the world.

Lee's Bass Playing Style

Lee's bass playing style is unique and instantly recognizable. He is known for his use of complex bass lines, often featuring countermelodies and intricate fingerwork. He is also known for his powerful and melodic lead bass playing.

Lee's bass playing is heavily influenced by jazz and classical music. He often uses jazz chords and progressions in his bass lines, and he is known for his ability to play complex and challenging bass lines with ease. Lee is also a master of counterpoint, and he often uses his bass to create melodic lines that complement and interact with the other instruments in the band.

Lee's bass playing is also characterized by his use of harmonics. He often uses harmonics to create a variety of different sounds, from ethereal and bell-like tones to more aggressive and distorted sounds. Lee is also known for his use of tapping, a technique in which he uses his fingers to tap on the fretboard to create a percussive sound.

Lee's Bass Gear

Lee has used a variety of different bass guitars throughout his career. His main bass for many years was a Fender Jazz Bass, but he has also used basses from Rickenbacker, Gibson, and Modulus. Lee is currently using a custom-made bass from the Fender Custom Shop.

Lee's bass rig is also quite extensive. He uses a variety of different amplifiers, cabinets, and effects pedals to create his signature sound. Lee's rig is constantly evolving, but he typically uses a combination of solid-state and tube amplifiers, as well as a variety of different effects pedals, including distortion, overdrive, chorus, and delay.
